Is my family protected against Measles?

Are you up-to-date on immunizations?

Infants under 12 months:

- Too young to get vaccinated (unless they are exposed). Make sure close contacts are vaccinated.

Preschool age children (1-3 years):

- First dose of MMR vaccine.

School age children (4+ years):

- Second doses of MMR vaccine.

Individuals are considered immune with any one of the following:

- Have a record of two doses of MMR vaccine.
 - Note: If vaccinated before 1997, you may have only received one dose. An additional dose is not needed unless you are exposed or if you will be in a higher risk setting (traveling internationally, health care workers, college students, etc.).
- Born before 1957
 - Note: Those born before 1957 are likely to have been infected naturally, meeting presumptive evidence of immunity.
- Have evidence of prior measles illness or lab-confirmed immunity.

Exposed high-risk individuals

Immune globulin (Ig) can be effective for high-risk individuals (infants too young for vaccination, pregnant people, and those who are severely immunocompromised) within 6 days of exposure.

Were you exposed to measles or do you travel internationally?

Infants under 12 months:

- MMR vaccine can be given starting at 6 months. Vaccine should be given within 72 hours of exposure.

Preschool age children (1-3 years):

- A second dose of MMR vaccine can be given if at least 28 days have passed since first dose. Vaccine should be given within 72 hours of exposure.

School age children (4+ years):

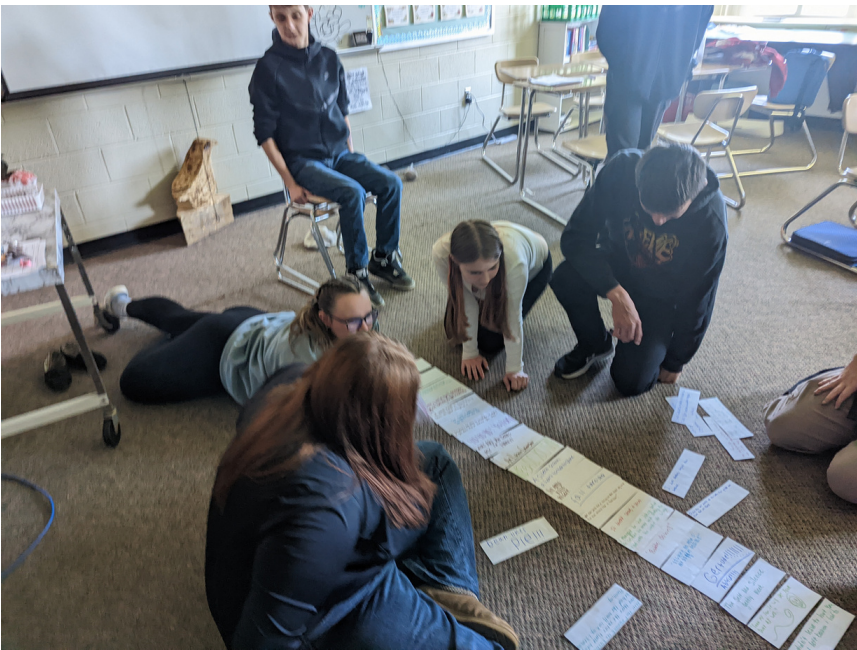

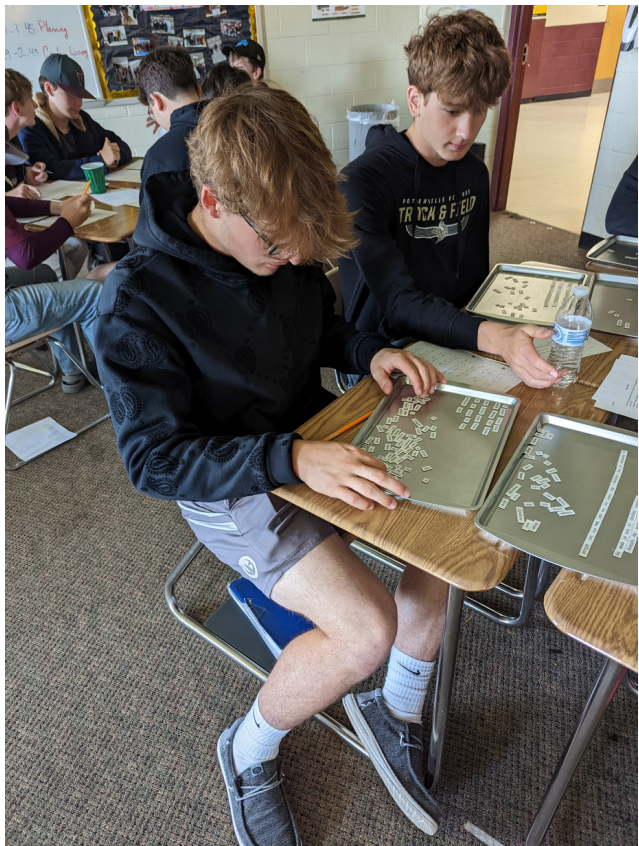

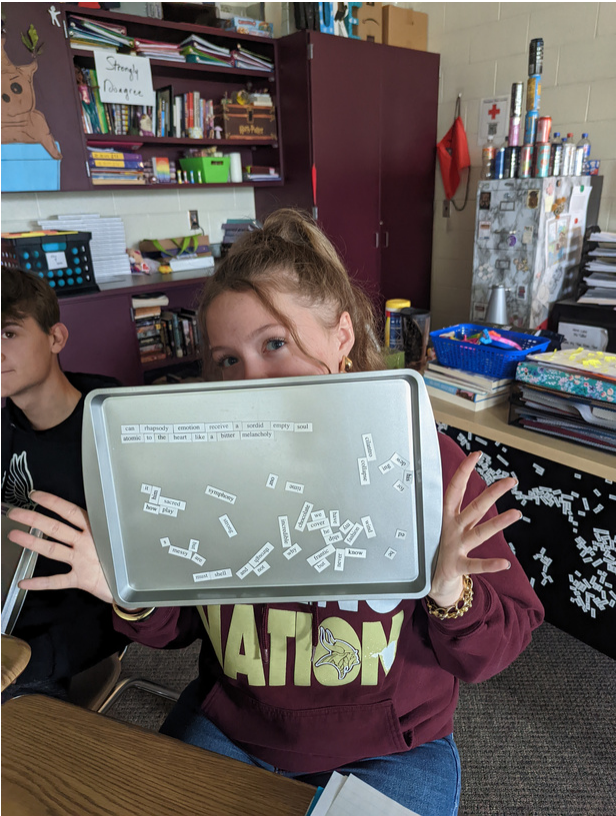

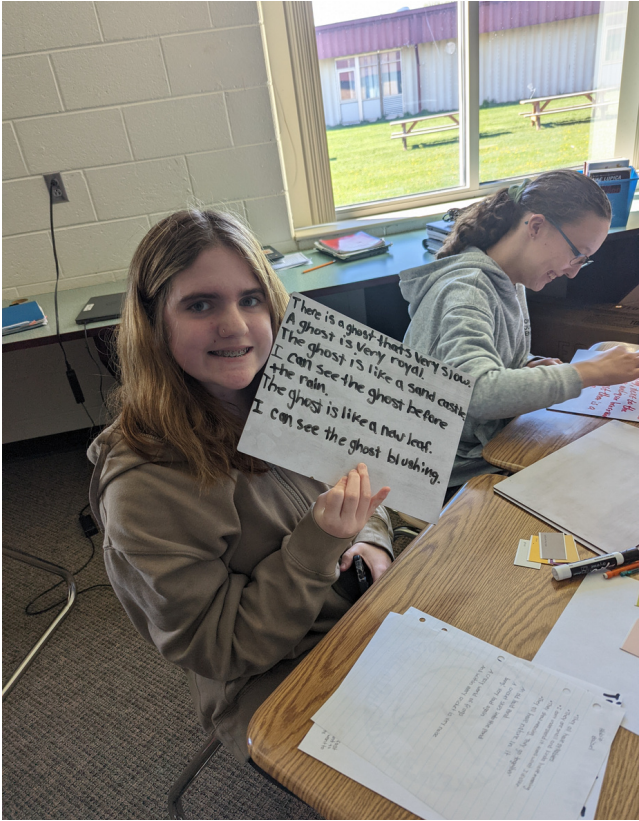

- Fully protected with two appropriately spaced doses. No action needed.
- If not vaccinated, vaccine should be given within 72 hours of exposure.

Adults:

- If considered immune, no action needed.
- If not considered immune, vaccine should be given within 72 hours of exposure.
- If born before 1957, vaccine can be given after discussions with your healthcare provider.
